Higher education options for students with intellectual disability (ID) have grown due to changes in federal funding, access to Title IV aid, as well as state legislation and leadership. The Higher Education Opportunity Act (HEOA, 2008) created model demonstration programs, called Transition and Postsecondary Programs for Students with Intellectual Disabilities (TPSIDs). Five-year grants were awarded to institutions of higher education for 2010- 2015 and 2015-2020 to develop TPSID programs. The HEOA also created a new designation – Comprehensive Transition and Postsecondary (CTP) program – that allows approved IHEs to offer specific kinds of federal student aid to qualified students with ID. Additionally, growing numbers of states are conducting strategic planning via statewide consortiums and passing legislation to support development and implementation of higher education options. This Think College SNAPSHOT provides a summary of these markers of systems change supporting higher education access for students with ID in the United States.
